

Free public airwaves obligate Sinclair Broadcasting and all
news companies to serve the public interest and not just their own
bottom line. I'm appalled by Sinclair Broadcasting's
overtly political decision to force
their stations to
air an anti-Kerry
documentary just days before the election. It doesn't matter which side they are supporting; it's wrong to air
propaganda as news,
especially right
before an election.

Media ownership
rules need to be made stronger and
the FCC should be an advocate for the public. It's important that we see real people and issues from our own communities and more
substantive news
about issues that matter.

Thank you,
